Here we have an almost direct conflict testimony, and seeing the gravity of the issue involved, it is eminently desirable, indeed it is incumbent on the parties concerned, to have the exact truth elicited. In the statement first published, the desecration was said to have been the work of a mob, and it was not suggested that the Authorities were implicated in the crime. In the last statement of the Catholic Register it is distinctly cognizant of the melting down of a copper figure taken from the cemetery. mony before us, it is impossible to pronounce definitely on the truth or falsehood of the charge made, but it may be useful to examine the evidence and see in what directween the lines, strikes us as to some extent corroborating the charge. Here we have what may be taken as an admission that the state of affairs was such that Civil and Military protection was required for the cemetery, and that it was thought necessary to issue proplamations on the subject. The damage may, of course, have been accidental and slight, and the taking of the extraordinary precautions referred to may have been the outcome merely of a desire to prevent even the possibility of any outrage being committed.
